RGM CONNECT: FREE DEMO CLASS

Connect. Communicate. Think on your feet.

Music. Rhythm. Movement. Connection.

A fun, small-group program for young adults on the autism spectrum.

What is RGM Connect?

Using the Ronnie Gardiner Method® (RGM), participants engage in music, rhythm, and movement activities designed to strengthen spontaneous communication, social connection and reciprocity, executive functioning, and coordination and self-regulation.

Who Is RGM Connect For?

RGM Connect is designed for young adults on the autism spectrum who are comfortable participating in a group but may struggle with social interaction, spontaneous communication, flexibility, or executive functioning. Participants should have functional spoken language and sufficient attention, coordination, and self-regulation to follow group instructions, manage their vocalizations and body movements, and participate without frequent disruptions or ongoing individual support.
